Updated March 23, 2020

In the coming days, we are taking bold steps to transform our remote capabilities and enable as many of our employees to work remotely. We expect to complete the transformation tomorrow evening. While we take these final steps, we are open for business, but unable to accept telephone calls. If you have an urgent request, please email us using the contact list below. Rest assured, we are ready to help you and your clients through these extraordinary times.

Thanks for your patience, as we retool to better safeguard the health of our employees, families, and communities.

On behalf of everyone at BMO Insurance, please continue to take care of yourself and thank you for your patience as we respond to these challenging times.
