

Reminder - Telephone Counselling Service

Submitted by Victoria on April 7, 2020 - 2:09pm

Time goes on and your clients are becoming more worried about the Coronavirus pandemic?

We are asking for your support in sharing this message with them. They need our support, we need yours!

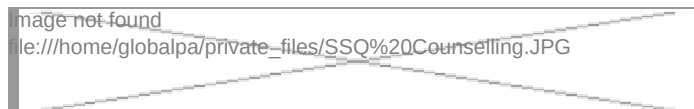

Thank you for taking action!

SSQ Insurance is looking out for the mental health of customers

SSQ Insurance understands that its customers may have concerns about the COVID-19 coronavirus and is offering free access to a telephone counselling service to the entire clientele across Canada to help them cope through this difficult period.

?We are all affected, each of us in our own way, by the pandemic. That can mean anxiety, feeling discouraged or having to deal with acute stress. In an effort to help our customers cope through these difficult times, we are offering them a support service. Our psychological health partner will be available to listen to and accompany them. Offering psychological assistance to our customers is part of our community effort, it is how communities make us,? said SSQ Insurance CEO Jean-François Chalifoux.

This crisis intervention assistance service is offered on a temporary basis. The measure is delivered by Optima Global Health?s specialists, professionals specialized in psychological health with the necessary evaluation and intervention training. Regardless of the type of product held at SSQ Insurance, all your clients will be entitled to this assistance and you can help in getting them this message. For all the details, click on the button below.

For SSQ Insurance, communities make us get our insureds the help they need.